September, 1991

It gives me great pleasure to present the 1990\91 Annual Review of the Alberta Agency for International Development (AAID).

Right now, we are on the verge of entering a new century and, for many Albertans, an era of renewed goals and aspirations. Yet, not everyone is so fortunate.

Since 1974, the AAID has worked with Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs) in providing less-developed countries with social and economic development assistance. Albertans recognize the value of sharing with the less fortunate and continue to strongly support the efforts put forth by the AAID. In fact, Albertans consistently contribute more to NGOs on a per capita basis than residents of any other province in Canada.

This past year was most eventful for the AAID and NGOs across the nation. The Persian Gulf War left thousands of Khurdish people as refugees in northern Iraq. The Alberta Government was proud to assist the Canadian Red Cross Society relief efforts by providing financial assistance to help alleviate this serious predicament.

In 1990/91, a total of 172 projects in 56 countries received over $1.9 million in financial support from AAID. These projects were managed by 69 NGOs which raised over $20 million in Alberta.

It's very comforting to see the generous support shown by NGOs and the people of Alberta. I trust the detailed information that follows will be of great use to you in reflecting upon our past philanthropy and our benevolence in the years to come.
